At The Obama Timeline, February 2014, Don Fredrick points out: "It is worth noting that on March 31, 2008 Obama said, "You know, I taught constitutional law fer [sic; for] ten years. I take the Constitution very seriously. The biggest problems that we're facing right now have to do with George Bush trying to bring more and more power into the executive branch and not go through Congress at all, and that's what I intend to reverse when I'm President of the United States of America." (Although Obama portrays himself as having been a "Constitutional law professor"—and the media goes along—he was actually only apart-time law lecturer at the University of Chicago (1992–1996) and senior lecturer (1996–2004). A law lecturer is only one step up from a graduate student teaching introductory courses. Although constitutional law was the subject he allegedly taught, he was not a full law professor. Obama appears never to have published any law articles, reviews, opinions, or scholarly writings that are expected of faculty members. Obama was not a tenured professor and shied away from friendships with others on the staff. Interestingly, Obama did not seek a spot on the Senate Judiciary Committee when he became a U.S. Senator. One unnamed faculty member of the University of Chicago relates that Obama was "lazy, unqualified," "never attended any of the faculty meetings," and had the "lowest intellectual capacity in the building.")

JT: Barack Hussein Obama is charlatan is a charlatan is a charlatan is a charlatan, ad infinitum.

***

Also, Don Fredrick writes that "The Obama Timeline believes the certification rule is intended not solely to discourage employers from laying off workers to get under the 100 employee ObamaCare threshold. In fact, it is unlikely that the government would actually make any intense effort to prosecute employers for perjury. The certification rule is also meant to prevent employers from saying that any layoffs are the result of ObamaCare. If an employer fires three employees because of ObamaCare—and he tells the employees that is the reason they are being let go—that story might make the evening news. Obama has now effectively prevented that from happening, because an employer who certifies to the IRS that the terminations were not ObamaCare-related can hardly emphasize to anyone that they were. Obama's certification rule is essentially a form of censorship: "Fire them if you have to, but don't tell anyone why you're doing it. I want people to blame 'evil capitalism' for their job losses, not my 'signature legislation.'" The absurdity of Obama's rule is monumental. If a business has 101 employees and has to provide each of them with health insurance that costs, for example, $8,500 per employee, that business must come up with $858,000 per year in new revenue to pay the premiums. If the business does not provide them with insurance, it faces a $2,000-per-employee penalty, or $202,000 per year. What if the employer has neither the $858,000 or even the $202,000? Does the owner simply shrug his shoulders, give up, and close down the business? Or does he fire two employees to get his employee count under 100, and then falsely "certify" to the IRS that his decision was not the result of ObamaCare? Obama has put the employer in the position of either going out of business or committing perjury. Obama – who is himself a criminal for implementing rules and waivers without having the Constitutional authority to do so—is making criminals out of honest businessmen. The only other option the employer has is to increase prices on his goods or services—enough to generate an additional $202,000 or $858,000 per year. That will happen across the country. It will start with businesses that have 100 or more employees, followed by businesses with 50–99 employees. Prices will skyrocket—but no one will be permitted to say that ObamaCare was the cause.

A man was telling his buddy "You won't believe what happened last night. My daughter walked into the living room and said, "Dad, cancel my allowance immediately, forget my college tuition loan, rent my room out, throw all my clothes out the window, take my TV and my laptop. Please take any of my jewelry to the Salvation Army or Cash Converters. Then, sell my car, take my front door key away from me and throw me out of the house. Then, disown me and never talk to me again. Don't forget to write me out of your will and leave my share to any charity you choose."

"Holy Smokes," replied the friend, "she actually said that?"

"Well, she didn't put it quite like that. She actually said, 'Dad, meet my new boyfriend—Mohammed. We're going to work together on Hillary's election campaign!'"

JT: Hello fellow male and female Americans or female and male Americans, our Islamic, peaceful friends and terrorists, and all of the genders listed on Facebook. My name is Killary Klinton and I want to be your next president of the United States of America. I want to follow in Barry's footsteps and be the first woman president after Valerie Jarrett. I promise that I will allow as many American ambassadors to be killed by my friendly Muslim terrorists as possible. I will not shun away from having their security personnel killed either. I have more than enough pre-recorded videos that will claim the ambassadors and the security personnel were killed because of an anti-Muslim video made in America.

Remember: A vote for me is a vote for one killed ambassador and at least four security personnel.

My motto: What difference does it make at this point?

ALLEN WEST: Obama's despotic actions were predicted by Montesquieu

Guest post by Allen West

As I look back on this past week, I have to summarize it in one word: crisis.

Domestically we face a constitutional crisis with a president who doesn't believe he must adhere to our fundamental system of governance. If you have some time, take a read through or refresh yourself on the "Spirit of the Laws" by Charles-Louis de Secondat, Baron de La Brède et de Montesquieu in 1748.

In that simple treatise, Montesquieu presented the idea of the separation of powers, checks and balances, and coequal branches of government. These ideas were adopted by our Founding Fathers, more specifically, James Madison, as he wrote the Constitution of the United States and the Federalist Papers – which I believe President Obama, the self-proclaimed constitutional scholar, has never read.

Montesquieu said, "When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty. The same monarch or senate would enact tyrannical laws and execute them in a tyrannical manner."

Montesquieu believed liberty was impossible if the judicial branch was not separated from the legislative and executive powers. He believed if the judiciary were combined with legislative power, individual life and liberty would be vulnerable to arbitrary control. Even worse, if the judiciary were combined with executive powers, judges would be oppressive and violent.

In the worst case of all, the same person or body would control all three powers.

Montesquieu, a champion of individual dignity and liberty, raised his voice against the despotic rule of the Bourbon monarchy of Louis XIV who boasted, "I am the state." Montesquieu knew well that "constant experience shows us that every man invested with power is apt to abuse it, and to carry his authority until he is confronted with limits."

But as Montesquieu stood up to the despotic rule of the king, who will stand up to the despotic rule of Obama?

If no one accepts this mantle and casts down the gauntlet, the constitutional crisis we face will only be exacerbated. The cancer will further metastasize.

We are in the sixth year of Obama, and I predicted if we reelected this charlatan to a second term it would be the greatest Pavlovian experiment the world has ever known. America would reward the most abhorrent of behavior — and lo and behold, “yes we did.” America is in crisis. Who will be our Montesquieu? Who will stand in the arena as our Maximus?

JT: I re-posted this because it is very important. However, at the same time, I'm afraid that POLDS (Progressives, Obots, Liberals, Dumbed downers, Socialists) will ask:

- 1 Ach? Do laws have spirits?
2. Who is Montesquieu? (They probably can't pronounce the name!)
3. Isn't Bourbon a whisky?
4. Can someone explain this to me?
5. Isn't Maximus a singer in some rock band?
