

Frederick William Dame

(Exercising freedom of speech ... as long as it still exists.)

Just Thinking

Number 108 Special Issue

On September 24, Barack Hussein Obama addressed the United Nations General Assembly. His rant was filled with his truths concerning climate change, the faults of George W. Bush, Islam is full of peace, dignity, and tolerance, as well as his perfect politics at securing world peace.

Bruce Thornton at <http://www.frontpagemag.com/2014/bruce-thornton/the-incredible-lightness-of-being-barack-obama/> writes:

"(N)othing matches the surreal moral idiocy of Obama's ... indulgence of moral equivalency:

I realize that America's critics will be quick to point out that at times we too have failed to live up to our ideals; that America has plenty of problems within our own borders. This is true. In a summer marked by instability in the Middle East and Eastern Europe, I know the world also took notice of the small American city of Ferguson, Missouri--where a young man was killed, and a community was divided.

Here is one of the staple dogmas of the Progressive mind: the sins and crimes of America that require apologies and reparations, even as the millions of dead, tortured, and imprisoned in other nations are shrugged off. Obama began his presidency with the 'apology tour' in which he donned the hair shirt of American guilt for its imperialist depredations, its racist sins, and its global exploitation of others. Then as now, Obama ignores important distinctions. To equate the atrocities of Islamic State or Hamas, or the shooting down of a passenger jet in Ukraine that cost nearly 300 lives, with what probably will turn out to be the justified shooting of a lawbreaker assaulting a police officer, bespeaks either delusion or the sophistic pandering to an audience comprising the representatives of nations most of which are some of the planet's most brutal and murderous regimes."

Mr. Thornton's critic is excellent, as far as it goes. I have taken the opportunity to go one step further in criticizing Barack Hussein Obama's speech before the United Nations General Assembly: My opinion is that the speech, like most of what Obama says and does, is

B

S

Frederick William Dame
Patriotic, Steadfast, and True
September 26, 2014